Savvy frenchman art dealer Denis Gardarin knows a good thing when he sees it, and that good thing he saw was Belgian rocker-cum-artist Joris van de Moortel. J.v.d.M. delivered a knockout show in Brussels this past May with a group of intense chock-a-block, light-up assemblages that owe as much to the Sex Pistols as they do to Robert Rauschenberg. There's no doubt he'll be bringing his punk shenanigans to Untitled's tent this December, but will his band Dan Browne rock the house the way they did at Paris' Fashion Week? One can only hope.
